For over 30 years, Parker Hannifin has developed innovative water desalination and disaster relief water purification equipment for some of the most challenging environments. NASA and FEMA relied on Parker to supply a self-contained reverse osmosis system for its disaster relief program. When Hurricane Katrina hit New Orleans, the US Army counted on Parker to help provide the Biloxi Regional Medical Center with clean, potable water for surgeries and drinking water. We recently sent emergency response watermakers to Haiti, Chile, Asia and other disaster sites around the globe. Call today to learn how Parker can support your Team to prepare for the unexpected.
