

Pleasure Marine Christensen Yachts specifies Village Marine PWS 2000

Market Application Publication

Parker Racor is working with Christensen Yachts, a premier custom luxury yacht builder, to ensure hassle free cruising on board the multi million dollar yachts they build.

The owner and engineer of the megayacht “Remember When” rely on reducing the running costs by insisting on Racor Village Marine (VMT) watermaker systems. Racor engineers have worked closely with Christensen Yachts for many years by offering systems to fit each new custom build.

Two each PWS 2000 watermakers were specified by the owner to provide the fresh water required for daily life on board.

Racor Village Marine watermakers are reliable and simple to use, the engineer on board the vessel at the Fort Lauderdale boat show said, “This is the second yacht I’ve had VMT watermakers on and they are so reliable and easy to use. We genuinely have no problems and we will always specify Parker on any new build”. The goal of many yacht owners is to be completely self-sufficient on board so they can travel to just about anywhere, at anytime, while still having all of the luxuries and privacy they desire. One of the biggest challenges in meeting this goal is securing a reliable source of fresh water while out at sea. Village Marine produces long lasting reliable units that can be trusted to reduce maintenance costs and deliver plenty of fresh water while at sea.
